Steven Spielberg never fails to blow us away with his imagination.

The US director's latest film Ready Player One, which was released in Chinese cinemas on March 30, is a story set in the year 2045, when people escape their hopeless everyday lives by putting on a VR mask and entering a virtual world named Oasis. This fantasy land is filled with characters and settings right out of classic films and video games. At the age of 71, Spielberg is still at the top of his game.

Indeed, Spielberg has always been a "gamer" himself-or more precisely, a "game changer". When his thriller Jaws came out in 1975, it struck a chord with audiences all around the world and even kept people from going swimming for fear of the "teeth in the sea". The film was also an example of what we know as summer hits. And again in 1982 his alien film E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial, Spielberg challenged people's belief that aliens are something to be feared by telling a story about a loving friendship between a space culture and a little boy.

Now comes Ready Player One. When Wade Watts, the film's teenager leading figure, finally prevents Oasis from falling into the wrong hands, he is given ownership of the virtual world by its late designer James Haliday. But Watts makes a decision that he hopes will make people want to appreciate their real lives, instead of spending all their free time escaping reality in Oasis, which is a real-life message that Spielberg is trying to deliver to the audience.

D. Because he tries to convey an important message to his audiences.

27. What message does Spielberg try to send to his audiences in his latest movie Ready Player One?

- A. We shouldn't escape from reality.
B. He holds an optimistic view about human's future.
C. There might be friendships between aliens and human beings.
D. VR technology will be widely used in our society in the future.

28. What is the best title of this passage?

- A. A Leading Director—Spielberg B. Spielberg's Life Achievements
C. Famous Blockbusters D. A Game Changer—Spielberg

Is "plogging" the most 2018 fitness trend yet? They brought us hygge, lagom and fika, but now a new Scandinavian trend is coming, and it couldn't be more 2018.

Hailing from Sweden, "plogging" is a fitness craze that sees participants pick up plastic litter while jogging—adding a virtuous, environmentally driven element to the sport.

Plogging appears to have started around 2016, but is now going global, due to increasing awareness and fear over plastic levels in the ocean.

The appeal of plogging is its simplicity, and the feeling of getting fit while supporting a good cause. By adding regular squats and carrying weight to jogging, we can assume the health benefits are increased.

Running and good causes have always gone hand in hand—just think of all the fundraising marathon runners do. But there couldn't be a more on-trend way of keeping fit than plogging.

"Anything that's getting people out in nature and connecting positively with their environment is a good thing," says Lizzie Carr, an environmentalist who helped set up Plastic Patrol, a nationwide campaign to rid our inland waterways of plastic pollution. "There's been a real shift in the public mindset around plastics, helped by things like Blue Planet highlighting how catastrophic the crisis is," she says. "We need to keep momentum high and the pressure up, and empower people through initiatives like plogging and Plastic Patrol.”

The Plastic Patrol app allows users to map plastic anywhere in the world by collecting discarded items, photographing them and uploading to the app, giving us a better knowledge of what sorts of plastic and which brands are being thrown out. “I’d urge all ploggers to get involved,” adds Carr. As we can see, plogging has become a new fashion in 2018. However, plogging isn’t the first fitness trend to combine running with a good cause.

29. What does the underlined word “discarded” mean?
- A. Useless. B. Abandoned. C. Exposed. D. Distinct.
30. Carr helped set up Plastic Patrol, a nationwide campaign, in order to _____.
A. raise public awareness of pollution
B. shift the public mindset around plastics
C. connect positively with their environment
D. make our inland waterways free of plastic pollution
31. What is the passage mainly about?
A. Plogging is the best way to keep fit.
B. 2018 sees an environmentally friendly way of fitness.
C. Running with good causes can make a great difference.
D. The Plastic Patrol app is an effective way to help you run.
32. What will the author continue to write?
A. other new fashions in 2018.
B. the first healthy trends in sports.
C. other fitness ways of running with a good cause.
D. the first healthy running trend with a good cause.

Ever since Donald Trump was elected President of the US, the entire Trump family has been put under a microscope.

In China, the spotlight has been mainly focused on Trump and his daughter Ivanka. She is described on WeChat as an extremely influential role model with striking beauty, a successful career, and happy family. She leads a dream life that a million girls would long for. Yes, she was born with a silver spoon in her mouth. But she got where she is by herself.

There’s always going to be articles that say people born into wealthy families are better looking and have a better family background than you, but these people do work harder than you.

There is a tendency in the media nowadays to encourage elitism(精英主义). They are trying to brainwash young people into thinking that they should invest an enormous amount of time and money in bodybuilding and appearance improvement. They make you believe that if you do as they say, you can improve the quality of your life and join the upper class.

But what’s the downside of being average or common? Do you really need to go to the gym five days a week unless you are a gym crazy? Do you really need to break your neck and sacrifice to earn your first pot of gold only to worry constantly about how to enter high society later?

Don't let the idea of elitism get to you. Everybody has a right to live the life they want. Human beings should not be judged as a success or failure based on whether they are a part of the upper class or not. As long as you lead a happy and comfortable life, why bother to chase after other people's shadows? Choose your own life path and go for it.

33. Which of the following about Ivanka is NOT mentioned in the text?

- A. She was born in a wealthy family.
- B. She has a successful career.
- C. She made it due to her father.
- D. She is pretty beautiful.

34. What is the author's attitude towards the tendency in the media to encourage elitism?

- A. Unconcerned.
- B. Negative.
- C. Doubtful.
- D. Approving.

35. What may be the best title for the text?

- A. Run After Stars' Shadows
- B. Elitism and the Upper Class
- C. Trump and His Daughter Ivanka
- D. Follow Your Own Course in Life
